Why So Many High School Dropouts?

Rating high ranking on any list of factors contributing to American high living standards is the availability of a good education. Public education may have faults, but these are overwhelmingly shadowed by the ease with which every child can obtain at least a high school education.

Free education is of course not free. It is supported by every taxpayer, every consumer and every employer and employe. But the cost to the student is zero. Or is it?

A study by Ripon College of Ripon, Wis., reveals the disturbing fact that 788 high school principals in whose schools 535,000 students are enrolled list the cost of school frills number two on a list of reasons for students abandoning formal education before high school gradua-

Such extracurricular costs as yearbooks, class rings, proms, rental of formal evening wear, photographs, field trips and caps and gowns are among the items which require a cash outlay by the student. Principals questioned in the survey estimated the annual cost of these extras at from $1 to $30.

It is not conceivable that education is held in such low esteem by parents that an expenditure of a few dollars for such items is excuse enough for a pupil leaving school. More likely, the total cost of equipping a child for schoolclothing, transportation (an increasing expense in many suburban communities) and dates might weigh heavily in financial considerations.

If financial obstacles do exist, there are alternatives more desirable than dropping out of school. It is not unusual for school classes to sponsor various fund-raising activities to underwrite extracurricular costs that loom large. The student who holds a weekend job will find himself enriched by more than money when he receives his diploma and enter sthe world of business in which he is already partially experienced.

The value of a high school education in today's world has escaped parents who weigh it unfavorably against the cost of a class ring.

Disengagement

The problem that President Kennedy faces, as President Eisenhower faced it, is how to disengage the United States not only from the complications of World War II but the consequences of a long series of events and agreements prior and subsequent thereto. It is very much like an individual's attempt to get out from under, as the expression goes. It very often is impossible

To the layman, this particular problem always seems easy. Some say that we ought to go to war with the Soviet Union and thus solve all problems. Others say that an atomic war is the most horrible event imaginable and that if, to avoid such a war, it is necessary to give in to Khrushchev, then we ought to give in. But Khrushchev is not our only problem. What about all the financial obligations we have undertaken in all parts of the world? Must we keep on pouring out our wealth? Must we accept the responsibility for every new country that has come into existence? And must we keep the United Nations alive even should it prove to be an instrument for our

Some say, why not let these little countries go their own way even if that way leads to the Kremlin. Others say that we assumed the responsibility of world leadership and that having gone this far, there is nothing we can do about it. And then there is a mass of American public opinion which makes distinctions between the countries they like and the countries they dislike irrespective of American interests. There are the Anglophiles and Francophiles and those who love or hate Spain, and the Old China Hands who would destroy Mao Tze-tung's regime and those who would use food to rescue all peoples from the consequences of their sins by giving them our surplus wheat and butter and whatever comes to hand and there are those who would let all Communists starve to prove that Marxism is a failure. Need we strengthen our enemies so that they might bite the hand that feeds them?

Public opinion in a free country is inevitably mixed because each individual sees things as his knowledge and experience permit and he always can back his opinion by a vote. Besides, we believe that out of debate will come the truth.

Thus, an American President, in his first term, is a prisoner of the complex of differing views. He might succeed as Roosevelt did to direct the force of public opinion into the channels that he chose, but Roosevelt, the politician, was at the beginning of a phase of history in which we still find ourselves and he was extra-ordinarily popular, although as some of us believed then, as more believe new, undeservedly,

It was his personal popularity which made it possible for him, in his second term, to make vast alterations in our economic and social system and in his third term to involve this country in what eventually became World War II. If World War I was an historical error, World War II and our partnership with Soviet Russia, particularly our willingness to sacrifice the British and Dutch Empires to Soviet Russia, proved to be a magnificent tragedy. Teheran and Yalta will go down in American history as headstones of defeat.

However, it is not easy to stay within the margins of our responsibilities without bringing on a war, if not on us, then one with our allies and our new friends, the former foes. Nor is it easy to disengage ourselves from these responsibilities without giving Soviet Russia a free hand to conquer much of the world. Two ideas, conflicting ideas, offer themselves as remedies:

One is that we use friendship, propaganda, educational exchanges, good-will and all the virtues of our civilization and the advantages of our wealth to aid nations to rise in their standards of life and to find it in their hearts to love us;

The other is to continue the arms race with Soviet Russia until the overwhelming cost of missiles, rockets, satellites and similar exhibitionistic instruments of power destroys their economy. But suppose in this race, it destroys our economy? Apparently, this race is damaging both countries. The problems of disengagement are numerous and, truth to tell, if there is no break-through soon, both sides will go broke. (Copyright 1962, King Features Syndicate, Inc.) 'Isn't The Cease-Fire Wonderful?'

Algerian Peace And The De Gaulle Problem

With remorseless will, Gen. de Gaulle has now attained the results he desired in Algeria. It remains to be seen whether the French rebels led by Gen. Salan can disrupt the peace de Gaulle has made with the Algerian rebels; but the betting is still on de

The betting is always on de Gaulle; and it always will be, at least until time's resistless erosion at last wears away this great man's great inborn powers.

Nothing has been more devoutly prayed for in Washington than the end of the war in Algeria, which has long resembled a running ulcer in the flank of the Western alliance. Ironically enough, however, the American policy-makers may soon be regretting this result that they prayed for because the end of the Algerian war will liberate de Gaulle to pursue larger aims and purposes. Soon after he took office. de Gaulle put the other Western allies on notice that he desired a radical reorganization of the Western alliance. The notice took the form of a memorandum to the American President and the British Prime Minister, proposing the establishment of an Anglo-Franco-American "directory" to lead the

In this memorandum, de Gaulle particularly objected to the American President's monopoly of authority over the nuclear deterrent. The decision when to use the deterrent, when to threaten its use, and when to refrain from using it, should not be in the American President's sole hands, de Gaulle then argued. Only the "directory." he suggested, should be empower-

But the viewpoint expressed in the memorandum has most emphatically not been abandoned by Gen. de Gaulle. In the intervening years, he has invested hundreds of millions in a French nuclear weapons program and in an embryonic nuclear "strike-force."

De Gaulle has also repeatedly insisted on the need to alter the MILK PRODUCTION - When President Kennedy decided to help the Agriculture Department promote the consumption of milk. he went about it in a big way. Not only did he permit himself to be photographed drinking a glass of the cow product, he induced the White House press corps to sample the stuff also. Kennedy is not known far and wide as a milk drinker, and certainly the reporters who "cover" him regularly usually wouldn't be caught dead with the stuff. But Kennedy was quite persuasive.

That Kennedy's effort wasn't a one-shot affair became clear the other day when King Saud of Saudi-Arabia undertook to drink not one, but two glasses of the stuff during a Washington stag dinner in his honor

There's really nothing new in Kennedy's effort to help the dairy farmer. Ezra Taft Benson, secretary of Agriculture in the Eisenhower administration, constantly tried to promote milk consumption by publicizing his own liking for the liquid.

GOP "IMAGE"-There's a lot of talk in political circles about the "image" that the Republican party is building up among the voters of the nation. Some Republicans, usually of the liberal stripe, contend the party's "image" is more conservative than it actually is because the more vocal, headline-grabbing Republican politicians are ultra-conservatives.

But Rep. Horace Seely-Brown, of Connecticut, wants no talk about the GOP "image." He refers to the dictionary which defines image as "an imitation or likeness of any person or thing. He also quotes from the First Commandment which says: 'Thou shalt not make unto thyself

In a mild, preliminary way, the issue came to a head during the last fortnight, owing to the Washington visit of the French Army's Chief of Procurement, Gen. Lavaud. The Bowie policy won support for the time being. Gen. Lavaud was not permitted to make the kind of purchases he desired. But that is by no means the end of the story. The President has in fact decided on a thorough-going new look at the entire problem.

U.S. Ambassador To Israel Learns He Will Have To Get Up Earlier

Ambassador Barbour learned his lesson the hard way from Congressman John Leonard Pilcher of Georgia and he has had no less than the President of the United States and the Secretary of State raise cain about it. Visiting Congressmen are to be met at airports no matter how early in the morning.

It all happened when Congressman Pilcher spoke at a dinner in Beirut, Lebanon, an Arab country which doesn't get along with Israel. The Georgia solon was chairman of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee studying foreign aid around the world. He worked hard.

In Lebanon a dinner given in the committee's honor was boycotted by Lebanese Congressmen because the American Congressmen were going on to Israel. Despite this Pilcher got up and made a speech defending Israel, called it a good friend of the United States. urged better understanding between it and the Arab world.

Next day, en route to Cyprus, other Congressmen congratulated Pilcher, remarked: "They'll certainly have the royal welcome out for you in Israel."

"I'm tired of all this pomp and ceremony," remarked the Congressman from Georgia modestly.

Strong For Education

It took a bachelor Senator to push through Congress the most important bill for educational television in the history of the USA. Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington, to whom President Kennedy paid tribute as one of the most effective Senators in the nation's capital, has been plugging away for more educational TV for about six years.

Though not a family man, Magnuson has studied the shortage of qualified teachers, the neglect of the schools, and the progress of Russian education. Through three different Senates he had passed a bill giving a subsidy of $1,000,000 to each of the states for educational TV, but each time the bill got stuck in the House. The House Rules Committee blocked it.

Finally the parent-teachers associations got behind Magnuson and together they induced the House to pass an educational TV bill. It provides only $25,000,000 instead of $50,000,000, and this is to be in matching funds, rather than outright federal grants as provided by Magnuson. Also the House bill fails to provide for a hook-up of educational TV stations with other educational stations so as to form regional educational networks. This was supposed to be worked out by the White House before the bill was passed. Said Jerry Wiesner of the White House staff: "I knew there was something I was supposed to talk to the House leadership about but it just slipped my mind." Note — At present there are only 62 educational TV stations on the air in the entire United States, though 273 channels have been reserved for educational TV since 1952. The reason they can't get into operation is lack of money.

Waldo W. Lynch brought Flight ly blast furnaces. Sullivan kidded 2 Pan American in from Beirut the captain about the lack of big table in the Palam Airport talking flying and travel. Lynch from one radio beacon to another is a man with short gray hair and, half the time we don't stop and a tough man's man approach to life. His big bird sat on the blocks outside the window, and he joked with his crew without taking his eyes off the 707, and what was being done to it. He has been flying for 30 years, which means that he flew the old high-wing Flying Clippers and he flew Stinsons and OX-5's and Curtiss Condors and other early birds which are now museum pieces. The captain invited Jack and Dorothy Sullivan over to the table. He knew that they were on a Roundthe-World trip and would be moving on with him this morning to Bangkok. Sullivan is a plump melon who owns a restaurant in Spring Lake, N. J. He has a smile like a lottery winner. Sullivan introduced his wife, an attractive blonde with hundred karat emerald eyes. The restaurant owner and the flight owner and the flight captain made good conversational foils. Sullivan talked of India; Lynch talked flying.

The crew listened. So did Kelly and I. Lynch said that this was a rare morning. "Sit on the left side," he said. "The air is so clear that, when we get to 30,000 feet, we should see the sacred Ganges below, the Himalayas and Mount Everest 400 miles to the north, and, if we pick up a jet stream we expect, Flight 2 should be moving at 750 miles per hour.'

Sullivan smiled. "Captain," he said, "have you ever seen a cobra and a mongoose fight it out on a sidewalk? We've been here only three days but.

Lynch sniffed politely. "In this part of India," he said, "cobras are as common as camels." Mrs. Sullivan laughed. She has a first class, number one laugh and soon everyone was laughing.

"Anyway," Sullivan said, "I think the battle is rigged. The mongoose grabs the cobra by the and when the fight is over," the captain said, "there isn't a mark on either one of them and you have paid five rupees to watch it." I shook my head. "Ten," I said. We talked old planes for awhile versus the reliability of jet engines. Lynch made a small gesture with his hands. "In the old days a piston aircraft." he said, "the fretful passengers were afraid a fire lan's ship required three years to would start in an engine. Now the go around it. of the preliminary check list. Kelly talked about the Hindu holy men she had seen and I cut in with my opinions about the abject poverty in the villages. The holy men wander from place to place, fasting and praying, and living off the meagre alms of peasants. The poor are poorer than anywhere else. They live in squalor and they do not complain. Some of the babies are swollen with sores; some are blind. Some are fat and healthy. This contrasts with the riches and silk saris of New Delhi, the big office buildings of the Nizams from the provinces: the rich food and 17-piece Hindu orchestra at the Ashoka Hotel and the vast brownstone palace in which the president lives. All countries are places of contrasts, but they are on the edge of extremity in India. The philosophy of the subjection of bodily desires to those of the soul is nowhere as deep as in this country. The Hindus, the Sikhs and the Moslems can gaze the Taj Mahal and a bowl of rice without envy. They are pa-death on a sidewalk. A loudspeaker called all passengers for Flight 2 Pan American and we gulped our coffee and went out. "I can't wait for breakfast," Jack Sullivan said, "I'm not knocking the food in India mind you, but I think I'll start with three grapefruit for openers.

Lynch shook hands all around. "You're getting off at Bangkok," he said. "I'm flying on to Hong Kong. I hope we meet again. It's a shrinking world. Magel-

Marshmallows Helpful Aid In Making X-Rays

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The marshmallow finally made headlines and we hope its new role will not increase the price. According to Dr. J. Edward Kelly Jr. of Boston, this product is a helpful aid when making X-rays of the esophagus.

This is the tube that connects the mouth with the stomach. But it is more than an ordinary tube that carries food and drink. The structure contains a series of circular muscles that constrict in perfect unison to propel solids and semi-solids into the stomach. The timing is so perfect that when a piece of steak reaches the bottom of the esophagus, the door of the stomach (sphincter or valve) opens automatically and allows the meat to enter.

Commission Lists Half Mile Dates

Marlboro May Get 24 Days; Hagerstown Meet Opens Sept. 10

BOWIE, Md. (AP)-Maryland's half-mile thoroughbred racing season would open at Timonium Aug. 11 this year under a proposed schedule submitted Thursday to the Maryland Racing Commis-

The schedule, proposed by the Maryland Agricultural Fair Track Association, provides for the transfer of Cumberland's 12 days to Timonium. It also allows for the possible shifting of 12 days from Bel Air to Marlboro.

Cumberland's session would open the minor track season on Aug. 11 and run through Aug. 25. The dates for the four other halfmile ovals would be: Timonium-Aug. 27-Sept. 8; Hagerstown-Sept. 10-Sept. 22; Bel Air-Sept. 24-Oct. 6 and Marlboro-Oct. 8-Oct. 20.

Bel Air's meeting has been the lead off session in past years, but would precede the final meeting at Marlboro under the schedule recommended by the half-mile track owners.

This would make it possible to provide four weeks of continuous racing at Marlboro if Bel Air's 12 dates are switched to the Southern Maryland track.

The association also noted the 1962 schedule would give Hagerstown a break from competition with the baseball World Series.

$2.3 Million School Budget Is Approved

Teachers Get Less Than Requested

A $2,369,048 school budget for the 1962-63 fiscal year starting July 1 was approved last night by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

That total is $67,400 less than the $2,436,448 which Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster and the County Board of Education had requested when they submitted their proposed budget to the county commissioners on

Most of the decrease is in salaries where the commissioners granted a $200 increase at each experience level, $100 less than the $300 the school board had requested. The present schedule for county teachers with a bachelor's degree starts at $4,100 and ends at $6,200. The commissioners upped the figures from a starting salary of $4,300 to a top salary with a bachelor's degree of

The $100 less granted to each of the 652 principals and teachers added up to $65,200 of the $67,400 cut from the budget. The commissioners also granted Mr. Webster a $500 increase whereas the school board had requested a $1,000 increase

UPIDC Budget

For the first time, the county commissioners decided last night to provide funds for the Upper Potomac Industrial Development Company, which previously had been supported by private contributions. Commissioners John J Rowan, John T. Mason and Louis V. Shinnamon agreed to grant the Upper Potomac agency $18,778, which is $1,200 less than was requested. The commissioners struck out the $1,200 item which would have gone to nelp the Cumberland Blouse Company, 210 South Centre Street, with its rent at the old armory. The Mayor and Council agreed yesterday to grant a five-cent across-the-board wage increase to its 275 employes on April 1. Another increase ranging from $52 to $260, and averaging in the $104 to $130 range will be upcoming on July 1 under the city's wage classification and pay plan. A few workers who are already in the top grade will not share in this mandatory wage boost. Hourly paid workers will get five and six-cent boosts under the pay plan July 1.

In announcing the increase following a meeting late yesterday morning, the Mayor and Council unanimously expressed regret that the increase, which will be more, but said a decrease in amount to $104 a year, could not anticipated revenues make a larger wage increase impossible.
